

ALUMNI want to SHARE

Man - Soravis Srinawakoon

Consultant at Boston Consulting Group

Stanford University

Master's of Science in Management Science and Engineering 2014

Bachelor's of Science in Computer Science 2013

Concordian International School

Class of 2010

"Concordian has been a lot lot more to me than a school. It is the place that instilled the value of leadership, responsibility, and compassion in me. Concordian taught me to believe in myself. It taught me I can and I will achieve the 'farfetched dream' I have - going to a world-class university and becoming an influential and compassionate leader in society.

In terms of academics, Concordian offers the IB program which prepared me well to tackle the sudden shift to Stanford University. IB courses are similar to first year college courses so I received free credits for my first quarter at Stanford. I was able to jump directly into advanced classes, which ultimately allowed me to graduate within three and a half years with both Bachelor's and Master's degrees.

Besides rigorous content, IB also gave me the skills to think independently and manage my time wisely. Thus, I was able to work hard and enjoy a lot of extracurricular activities.

I was able to take on seven courses and, at the same time, managed to play sports on the weekdays and go on ski and hiking trips on the weekends.

In addition, Concordian is unique because they truly emphasize the value of leadership. Because of the school's support, I was able to start a charity to build libraries in a rural part of Thailand. My team and I renovated Bangkok Refugee Center, donated money to a childcare center, spent multiple weekends at an elder house, and the list goes on. Not only did I participate, but I had the opportunity to drive and lead these activities —a one-of-a-kind experience a normal high school student will not receive anywhere else.

Fast forward five years, I now work at a leading management consulting firm where we work with business leaders on critical problems challenging their businesses. The work is fast-paced and extremely stressful as I work directly with C-suite and senior executives to change and add values to their business.

Thanks to Concordian, I am still able to manage my time, my stress, and able to take huge responsibility. And while this may be a lot for a 23 year old, I know there is a lot more exciting dreams and change I can bring to the world—as Concordian has trained and taught me to believe."

